

PAKISTANI DIPLOMATS FLEE

ASYLUM SOUGHT IN INDIA

A Story Of Massacre And Brutal Deeds

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Two Bengali-born Pakistani diplomats were given political asylum by India and put under protective custody today after accusing their government of wantonly massacring East Pakistanis.

Both diplomats—Second Secretary K. M. Shehabuddin, 30, and Assistant Press Attache Amjadul Huq, 33—said they intended to return soon to "serve the cause" of Bangla Desh (Bengali nation), as they referred to East Pakistan.

Their dramatic switch of allegiance occurred shortly after news reports of widespread fighting in East Pakistan and grim tales from foreign evacuees of a "bloody massacre" following the crackdown on Sheikh Mujibur Rahman's secessionist movement.

The evacuees spoke of "bloody massacres" but said the blame could not be placed on one side alone. Both were guilty of brutal, inhuman deeds, they said.

The evacuees spoke to reporters after sailing into Calcutta Tuesday night from the major East Pakistani port of Chittagong aboard the British ship Clan McNair. There were a total of 120 evacuees of 17 nationalities on the ship, including eight Canadians.

REBELS IN CONTROL

Meanwhile, the Press Trust of India, quoting reports reaching Calcutta from across the border, said Bangla Desh forces controlled the whole of the eastern region of East Pakistan from the outskirts of Chittagong in the south to Sylhet near the Assam border in the north.

The reports said West Pakistani troops had retaken a military base and other parts of Chittagong after a big land, sea and air counter-offensive, but the districts of Noakhali, Comilla and Mymensingh were in the hands of Sheikh Mujib's followers.

The reports, none of which could be confirmed from independent sources, said the East Pakistani forces won control of Sylhet Tuesday after four days of bitter fighting and established an advantageous position for a decisive bid to recapture the eastern region capital of Dacca.

The reports said the Pakistan air force carried out extensive air raids on Mymensingh, Narayanganj, Bogra, Sylhet and Rajshahi Tuesday.

Naval gunboats bombarded villages on either side of the waterway connecting Chittagong to the town of Kyulna in order to get relief supplies to the beleaguered Khulna army garrison.

PRICE ON HEADS

The reports also said that martial law authorities have put a price of $1,335 on each of the Awami League members of the National Assembly. The Awami League, Sheikh Mujib's party, won 167 of the 199 East Pakistani seats in the December elections to the assembly, which has never met.

A majority of the evacuees who sailed into Calcutta on the Clan McNair said they preferred not to speak or give their names as there were "more people back in there."

The evacuees said Chittagong was deserted. Most of the population left for the countryside after "all hell broke loose" Friday, March 26.

British evacuees spoke of bodies scattered all over Chittagong, East Pakistan's second largest city. Dogs and crows were stripping the bodies, some of which had been lying rotting for nine days, they said.

A jute mill manager from Dundee, Scotland, said: "It has been a bloody massacre. You cannot pin the blame on one side. Both sides have been inhumanly brutal. Several Punjabis were killed in cold blood by Bengalis."

Another Briton said government troops went to every house looking for Bengalis. "Two Bengalis were tied to the back of a truck and dragged along with their legs bound together and their heads banging along the road."

John Martinussen, a Dane who was studying at Dacca University, said the crew of the Clan McNair told him they counted 400 bodies floating in Chittagong harbor April 2.

LONDON (Reuters) — About 1,500,000 people in East Pakistan are facing starvation on a scale worse than the Nigerian civil war, one expert said here today.

The forecast was delivered by Iain Macdonald, East Pakistan relief co-ordinator for the Organizations Christian Aid, Oxfam and War on Want.

He said the Pakistan civil war has prevented cultivation necessary for the next harvest in November.

Grain supplies would disappear in two months and starvation would be inevitable because road and air links would be cut by the fighting.

USE PILGRIM SHIPS?

The Associated Press said Indian intelligence reports claimed the Pakistani government was using Moslem pilgrimages to send troop reinforcements into the East.

Foreign ministry officials said the information was based on aerial reconnaissance of the ships as they steamed from Karachi to the Eastern province around the Indian sub-continent.

The ships, the officials said, are normally used to take Moslem pilgrims on voyages to Saudi Arabia for the Haj rites at Mecca.

Indian officials also said they had received information that Pakistani ships were experiencing difficulty in landing troops at the inland ports of Khulna and Chulna because of firing by East Pakistani independence forces on Pakistani gunboats.

The Indian intelligence reports also said West Pakistani troops were trapped in two cities inside Khulna district, on the southwestern tip of the province near the Indian border.

The reports said the Pakistani soldiers were surrounded by the East Pakistanis and were unable to break the cordon.

Secret Meeting Held on Mid-East

LONDON (AP) — The foreign office disclosed today that high British and Soviet officials have had secret talks in London on the Middle East situation including problems of implementing big power guarantees to underpin any Arab-Israeli settlement.

An unannounced one-day conference last Friday brought together British and Soviet diplomats who head the Middle East departments of their respective foreign ministries, a British spokesman said.

The British representative, Anthony D. Parsons, is assistant undersecretary of state at the foreign office and he was accompanied at the conference by five or six advisers.

The Soviet official was identified as a Mr. Sytenko, head of the Near East department of the Soviet foreign ministry, and he flew in for the talks from Moscow with about four aides.

The United States, Britain, France and Russia for some time have been trying to reinforce the peace-making mission of UN envoy Gunnar Jarring.

The foreign office spokesman said the British talks with the Russians resemble similar exchanges Britain has been having with the U.S. and France.

Nixon Faces Critical Test

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Nixon faces a critical political test tonight when he goes on television to announce how fast he intends to bring U.S. troops home from Vietnam.

A substantial increase in the rate of the U.S. withdrawal is regarded as certain, perhaps going as high as 20,000 men a month compared with the present rate of 12,500.

Public tolerance for continuing the war is at a low point. Only 50 per cent of the people believe Nixon is doing a good job as president, and demands have mounted in Congress for the U.S. to get out of Indochina come what may.

Yugoslavian Target For Two

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (Reuters) — Two armed men entered the Yugoslav embassy here today and shot Ambassador Vladimir Rolovic, seriously wounding him, police said.

They said the envoy was shot in the head, groin and leg. He was taken to hospital in critical condition.

A woman embassy official was also shot in the groin and taken to hospital, police said.

Sudden Storm Hits East U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — An intense spring storm swirled up the eastern United States seaboard today, lashing the coast with strong winds and high surf and sweeping cold rain and snow inland to the Appalachians.

New York City was plastered with a mixture of snow, rain and sleet driven by winds of more than 50 miles an hour. A foot of snow hit Bluefield, W. Va.

Eiffel Tower Jump Becomes 354th

MORE THAN THIRD OF STUDENTS TRY MARIJUANA IN VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirty-six per cent of Vancouver secondary school students have tried marijuana by the time they are 18, the Narcotic Addiction Foundation of B.C. said Tuesday.

The results of a survey done last May by the foundation also showed that there is no evidence of widespread use of marijuana leading to extensive use of heroin.

Ninety-eight per cent of the students had never used heroin, and two-thirds of those who had tried it had taken it five times or less.

The study showed that about 10 per cent of senior students use LSD, but alcohol and tobacco remain the most popular drugs among students.

The foundation concluded that most drug use is experimental and transitory among students.

Railways 'Pull Out All Stops' To Reduce Backlog Of Traffic

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers were back to work at all points today with Canada's two major railways attempting to catch up on the backlog of traffic.

The 75 CNR engineers at Thunder Bay were the last to return to work, doing so at midnight Tuesday, following the 280 CNR members of the union in Winnipeg, who went back to work earlier in the day.

Workers at both points returned to their jobs "under protest" while in Edmonton engineers adopted a work-to-rule approach when they went back to work Monday night.

Many of the more than 4,000 union members in Canada expressed annoyance about a union bylaw under which members do not have a say in ratification of the contract agreed upon by union negotiators and CP Rail and CNR Monday.

With the men back at work, a CPR spokesman in Calgary said they are "pulling out all the stops" to move loaded grain cars to Vancouver terminals from points between the Pacific Coast and Saskatchewan's western boundary.

About 1,000 cars of grain are sitting at CPR points between Field, B.C. and Vancouver with a backlog of another 2,300 on four Alberta divisions.

In Toronto, meanwhile, about 150 locomotive engineers held an emergency meeting and agreed to consider the formation of a Canadian union.

The men rejected a motion of a wildcat strike, but formed a committee to consider the next step. Robert McCallum, a spokesman for the group, said "We have got to have Canadian autonomy or we will never be able to run our own affairs."

Crown Opens Vancouver Case On Allegations About $715,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — Financial A. G. Duncan Crux was the "kingpin" of the Commonwealth group of companies, prosecutor Kenneth Fawcus told a British Columbia Supreme Court jury Tuesday.

"He was the boss," he said in opening the Crown's case against Crux on charges of theft and false pretences in what is alleged to involve $715,462.

Crux faces three counts—two of theft and one of false pretences. They all arise out of a transaction said to have taken place between Sept. 1, 1968, and Dec. 1, 1968, in which the crown alleges, Crux committed theft by converting $715,462 in securities of three firms to a use not authorized by them.

The firms are Fredder Enterprises Ltd., Maenar Enterprises Ltd., and Eastpoint Holdings Ltd.

Mr. Fawcus told Mr. Justice A. B. Macfarlane the Crown intends to call evidence to show that, while Crux did have "lawful possession" of the securities under an agreement with the owners of them, the securities which were earmarked for certain purposes "were used for quite another purpose."

The securities were not to be sold by Crux without approval by one of the three firms, he alleged.

The prosecutor said the Crown will allege in evidence that after the owners of the securities transferred them to Crux, Crux then told the manager of Diversified Income Securities Ltd.—the operator of a mutual fund—that the securities could be purchased from him, and ordered the manager to do so.

NO RIGHT

"Crux never had the right to sell them," Mr. Fawcus said the Crown will seek to prove.

He told the jury there will be evidence in which the Crown will endeavor to show that Crux then caused $715,462 in cheques to be delivered to Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce by Diversified.

He said the Crown contends that the mutual fund was under an obligation not to purchase securities unless they were clear of encumbrances.

"But this was not done in this case 'for a very good reason.' The reason, it is alleged, is that a Commonwealth company in the Bahamas—Commonwealth Trust (Bahamas) Ltd.—'urgently' needed to pay off a money debt to Barclays Bank 'or lose its licence to do business in the Bahamas.'"

Mr. Fawcus said the Crown will call evidence to support this claim and will also call evidence to show Crux's relationship to the various Commonwealth companies, particularly Commonwealth Investors Syndicate Ltd.

The hearing continues.

Guerrillas Pull Out Of Amman

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Palestinian Arab guerrillas were withdrawing men and weapons from Amman today, but a commando spokesman said the move had nothing to do with a speech by King Hussein urging them to do so.

"We decided Sunday to move out to prevent the Jordanian army from entering the city under the pretext of keeping order," the spokesman said.

Neither the government nor the guerrillas in Amman issued statements on new fighting today. There was sporadic firing as usual in Amman during the night but the city was calm for the third straight day.

King Hussein said in a speech released Tuesday night that government officials told him of the guerrillas plan to withdraw from Amman.

The guerrilla spokesman said the government has violated the Cairo and Amman ceasefire accords that ended last September's fighting by not allowing commandos to set up bases in the Jordan Valley to operate against Israel.

Yasser Arafat, leader of the Al Fatah guerrilla organization, was quoted in an interview published in a Lebanese magazine as saying his movement had no plans to overthrow the king.

B.C. Rail Safety Conditions Attacked By Perrault

OTTAWA (CP) — Railway safety conditions in the mountainous regions of British Columbia were criticized Tuesday by Ray Perrault (L—Burnaby-Seymour).

He told the Commons transport committee that it is scandalous that a slide detector fence was out of operation for a full month near Boston Bar, B.C. where three railwaymen lost their lives after their Canadian National Railway freight train ran into a rockslide.

Mr. Perrault, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister Bryce Mackenzie, said that locomotive engineers told him in weekend contract talks with the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways that there were a number of unsafe conditions in western Canada.

He suggested that radar or some electric eye device could be developed to replace the slide detector fence. The slide detector is a wire fence which sets off warning signals when rocks or snow tumble down from the mountains.

The Canadian transport commission railway safety inquiry was told recently that the slide detector fence in the Boston Bar area was out of service from Dec. 8 last year to Feb. 28 this year, several days after the accident which killed three CNR employees.

Company officials said it is almost impossible to repair some sections of the fence in winter because of heavy snowfalls.

Mr. Perrault also told the committee that the high noise level in diesel locomotives bothered engineers.

In addition, he produced a bag with a draw string which he said is being tested as a replacement for toilets. The railways were trying out camp stools with these bags to "dispose of human waste."

He said it is undignified, "I don't think this can represent the pinnacle of modern research."

John Skoberg (NDP—Moose Jaw) said it is such matters that create discontent among engineers and other railway employees.

PM's Plan Same For Soviet Trip

In Ottawa Tuesday night, a Trudeau spokesman said the visit will begin May 11 and last 11 days.

Trudeau will be accompanied by his wife Margaret, whom he married last month.

His October program included visits to the cities of Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev and the central Asian towns of Samarkand and Tashkent.

They also included calls on the Arctic port of Murmansk and the Siberian mining centre Norilsk, inside the Arctic circle.

Nixon 'Damaging To Justice'
By Entry Into Calley Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capt. William Calley, has accused President Nixon of damaging military justice and enhancing the stature of a convicted murderer "as a national hero" by intervening in the case.

In a letter to Nixon dated April 3—the day the president announced he would personally review the final military judgment of Calley's responsibility at My Lai—Daniel said:

"You have subjected a judicial system of this country to the criticism that it is subject to political influence, when it is a fundamental precept of our judicial system that the legal processes of this country must be kept free from any outside influences."

Calley was convicted March 30 for the premeditated murder of 22 South Vietnamese civilians in what Nixon himself once referred to as an apparent massacre at My Lai village.

Two days later, Calley was sentenced, by the same six-man army jury, to life imprisonment. Nixon ordered Calley released from the stockade at Fort Benning, Ga., and held there in the military equivalent of house arrest.

"In view of your previous statements concerning this matter, I have been particularly shocked and dismayed at your decision to intervene in these proceedings in the midst of the public enormity," wrote the 29-year-old Daniel. "Your decision can only have been prompted by the response of a vocal segment of our population, who while no doubt acting in good faith, cannot be aware of the evidence which resulted in Calley's conviction."

"Your intervention has in my opinion damaged the military judicial system and lessened any respect it may have gained as a result of these proceedings."

NAMES IN NEWS

Slain Pair 'Likely Dumped In River'

The teenage victims of Saturday's double slaying now are believed to have been dumped into the Fraser River after they were shot. Police said Tuesday in Richmond laboratory tests showed both bodies had been in the water and presumably were washed ashore at the locations where they were found a half-mile apart Saturday and Sunday. Previously, it had been thought that Brock Steven Johansson, 16, and Adele Elaine Bougie, 16, might have been killed separately.

KNOWLTON NASH
... open Sesame

The children's program Sesame Street is to return to the CBC television network for a second season this fall. Knowlton Nash, director of information programs for the English services division, announced Tuesday in Toronto. The series produced in the United States "has been enormously successful in Canada," said Mr. Nash.

Latest audience figures by the Bureau of Broadcast Measurement show a total audience of almost one million for the program, an unusually high audience for a morning time slot.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath Tuesday ended two days of talks with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt in Bonn and said it is possible to reach agreement on the main problems of British entry into the European Common Market by this summer.

President Jose Maria Velasco of Ecuador bowed to the demands of 100 rebel army officers Tuesday and fired his nephew as defence minister. The nephew, Jorge Acosta Velasco, was arrested and army sources said he would be tried on charges of fomenting army disunity.

Four men were charged Tuesday in Montreal with murder in the March 18 slaying of three men in a downtown nightclub. Joseph DiMauro, 29, Joseph Toni, 45, and Julio Ciamarro, 38, were charged in the slaying of Jean-Claude Rioux, while Jean-Marc Merin was charged with the shooting deaths of Jacques Verrier and Andre Vallancourt. DiMauro is manager of the Casa Loma Cafe where the three bodies were found.

Canadian and American officials apparently found themselves with a difference of opinion Tuesday about their trade figures and Finance Minister E. J. Benson of Canada said he decided to have his department look into the problem. That appears to have been the closest thing to a disagreement that showed up in Benson's first meeting in Washington with the new United States secretary of the treasury, former Texas Democrat John Connally.

Even Richard J. Daley's closest advisers expressed surprise today in Chicago the overwhelming margin by which the 68-year-old mayor retained control of the second largest city in the United States. The tough veteran of 16 years in city hall, recognized as the single most powerful force in the Democratic party, swamped 41-year-old Richard E. Friedman Tuesday. In winning an unprecedented fifth term as Chicago's mayor, he picked up nearly 70 per cent of the vote and amassed a majority of just under 400,000 votes.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin said Tuesday that a European security conference could lead to co-operation in such projects as pollution control and the establishment of an electric power grid for all Europe. A conference of all the European states to discuss such matters as economic co-operation and a reduction of troop levels has been a pet project of the Communist block for more than two years. Some Western governments have been suspicious of the proposal, regarding it as a means of freezing the political situation in Europe.

Hyman Engel, Canadian co-ordinator of the Jewish Defence League, said groups in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa are planning a major protest in Ottawa early in May. The aim of the protest will be to impress upon the government of Canada the plight of Soviet Jews, immediately prior to Prime Minister

Some MPs Still Not Too Clear
About Textile Bill's Effect

OTTAWA (CP) — Senate legislation intended to strengthen and protect the Canadian textile industry cleared its final Commons hurdle Tuesday but left a number of MPs apparently uncertain about its future effects.

Max Saltzman (NDP—Waterloo) was one of several opposition spokesmen who said it is impossible to tell from an examination of the bill whether it will be a protectionist device used to maintain inefficient domestic textile firms or a method of rationalizing the troubled industry.

The Commons would simply have to wait and see, Mr. Saltzman said.

Basically, the bill, which now goes to the Senate, gives the government full power to control imports of textiles and clothing whenever such action is recommended by a textile and clothing board set up by the measure.

One of the largely overlooked aspects of the bill is a clause that would allow the government to limit imports of any material found by the federal anti-dumping tribunal to be damaging domestic industries.

The Commons also gave second reading Tuesday to a proposed young offenders' act and sent the legislation to the justice committee for study before going on to debate the government's proposed reorganization bill. The debate continues today when the House is also scheduled to adjourn until Monday, April 19, for an Easter recess.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin noted that the textile bill requires the textile board to request all firms seeking government protection to present a plan for rationalization.

A somewhat similar bill passed last year by the United States House of Representatives created wide controversy. It failed to get Senate approval before the end of the year.

Mr. Pepin said the main intent of the bill was to provide protection from low-priced imports for those domestic textile firms that had a plan for becoming more competitive.

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) said he felt sure the minister would honor his commitment. But what about future ministers?

The debate, which began slowly at second reading when only one MP spoke against the bill, has pitted the free-trade interests of the West against the more protection-conscious interests of Central Canada where most textile industries—employing about 200,000 workers—are located.

The bill still needs Senate approval and royal assent to become law.

The young offenders' bill, which also has a stormy Commons history, has been denounced by critics as overly legalistic and a criminal code for children.

Federal Youth Programs For Summer Employment

Kelowna and district students looking for work may be eligible to participate in one of a number of student employment and activity programs sponsored by the federal government.

The programs, with a combined value of $57.8 million, are designed to involve as many as half a million Canadian students in meaningful jobs, travel and other summer activities, say federal officials.

One program, called opportunities for youth, is aimed at stimulating communities across the country to put forward and operate imaginative and useful projects to employ more than 10,000 students during the summer.

The scope of the program will be limited only by the students' imagination and the participating citizens' groups and voluntary community organizations, officials add.

A second program dubbed transient youth service, will provide up to 200,000 bed-nights in a national network of hostels for those travelling across Canada during the summer.

At the same time, Ottawa, in co-operation with provincial and municipal governments and a local organizations will establish 50 roadside kiosks (telescope-like structures) to serve as information centres and safe hitchhiking depots for the travellers across the country.

The third scheme involves two programs for organized travel. One plan, a joint federal-provincial operation, anticipates to send 4,200 grade 11 and 12 students on inter-provincial travel.

Under the second program, funds have been created to assist voluntary organizations and youth groups to hold seminars, study groups and exchange projects involving inter-provincial travel.

At the same time, there are two international travel programs to involve 5,500 students. One plan calls for more financial assistance to voluntary groups organizing travel and exchange programs; the other is directed to Francophone (French-speaking) students for study in France.

Another scheme involves 2,500 students to learn a second language—French or English—at Canadian universities.

Other federal schemes involve referring students for employment in the federal public service; militia and cadet training programs; and provide 3,200 post-secondary Canadian students to enjoy a working holiday in Europe under an international student summer employment exchange program between Canada and 10 European countries.

About 100 Okanagan youths, between 16 and 24 years old, will be eligible to receive militia training during a seven-week period at the Kelowna and Vernon Armies.

Lt.-Col. J. T. F. Horn, commanding officer, British Columbia Dragoons, says the 100 men will be proportionately divided between the two centres. Penitence is not involved in the scheme.

There will be two training programs, a basic military training for new recruits, and advanced instruction for returnees.

In the first program, recruits will be given three weeks of basic military training followed by three weeks of a modified infantry program at local armories.

The course will conclude with a one-week camp for weapons training.

The second course, to last seven weeks at training centres and bases, will consist of a leadership course based on junior non-commissioned officer standards followed by adventure training. This program is for those involved in the scheme last year.

In a new scheme, the defence department will provide training for 2,000 men between 16 and 24 years old to receive six weeks of instruction at Mobile Command bases across the country in first aid, hunter safety, bush survival, search and rescue, water safety, watermanship, citizenship, adventure training, leadership and instructional techniques.

Col. Horn says while details will be announced later, some of this program may be done locally.

Meanwhile, the public service commission of Canada is sponsoring two programs for post-secondary students.

One is a career-oriented program to complement or augment the student's academic training while the second, non-career oriented positions such as labor and clerical tasks in the public service.

Kelowna aldermen will discuss such possibilities in a special meeting Thursday.

Engineering and recreation departments would hire the students, with students assigned various tasks by the department they are hired by.

Engineering would use the students as crews in the park or part-time clerical staff while recreation employs them as instructors, playground supervisors and lifeguards.

The Kelowna Chamber of Commerce is endorsing the Canadian Chamber of Commerce campaign to hire students, says manager W. J. Stevenson.

The chamber, he says, is doing its part by hiring four students as of June 1 to operate the tourist booths in the area and to work in the office.

The focal point for placement will be the Kelowna Canada Manpower Centre, which will work with other federal departments and the chamber of commerce involved in other student summer programs.

Further details will be announced when details are completed.

One is a career-oriented program to complement or augment the student's academic training while the second, non-career oriented positions such as labor and clerical tasks in the public service.

... Cloud

Skies will be cloudy Thursday with a few rain periods. Temperatures will be cooler. Winds will be strong southwesterly in main valleys.

Tuesday's high was 68, the low 42 with a trace of precipitation. Low tonight and night Thursday will be 33 and 55.

Maps Ready By May 1

The annual Kelowna and District Jaycee tourist promotion map is all set to go.

"We've had good response generally," says map committee chairman Ernest Poitras, adding advertising sales for the two-sided single sheet tourist guide are "up from the previous year."

The club hopes to have between 40,000 and 45,000 maps ready for public distribution by May 1. The basic four-color layout will remain unchanged, said Mr. Poitras, and the work will be done by a local printing firm. Because of the four-color combination, the job will take about two weeks.

Funds from the project, which was initiated in 1960, are used to sponsor various Jaycee schemes. The map provides tourist information on Kelowna on one side and an area from Winfield to Peachland on the other. Last year more than 40,000 editions were printed with demands for the map coming from as distant as Nevada.

SEEN and HEARD

Lost hubcaps aren't rare vehicular occurrences, but a motorist on Ellis Street today got a break when he spotted one of his own wheel discs travelling alongside him and managed to retrieve it with the assistance of a helpful pedestrian.

City committee secretary Jack Simons will add the family division committee of South Okanagan Mental Health Centre to his list of duties. The Kelowna committee meets the first Wednesday of each month. Mrs. D. E. Hill, former committee secretary, asked for Mr. Simons to serve as secretary and city hall liaison officer.

Although the upcoming musical Fiddler On The Roof is a traditional story which takes place in a Russian village in the year 1905 the peasant costumes worn by the female cast were very popular with the fashion world this season. Also in style are the many beards seen on the faces of their male counterparts.

You have to get up pretty early to get ahead of city hall employees. Mayor Hilbert Roth was reading a resolution Monday night about "self-service wash installations" at car wash establishments. "I guess that should be 'wash,'" he said, but employees assured him "wash" is correct. They are used to wash cars at self-serve places.

Food Supplies Plentiful And Prices Appear Stable

Apple prices in Western Canada will remain steady with supplies above last year's and well above average, says Apple's food outlook from the federal department of agriculture.

Apple supplies in Eastern Canada are below last year, but above average, it adds.

Looking at other food items, the report says beef supplies are increasing but with a firm demand little price change is anticipated.

Pork supplies are expected to continue heavy at relatively low prices.

Eggs are in plentiful supply with the possibility of some price increases.

There are plentiful supplies of broiler and roaster chickens. Prices will be firm with likely increases in Quebec. Broiler turkeys will be in plentiful supply at firm prices while supplies of heavy turkeys to be adequate at steady prices.

Potato supplies in Western Canada, Ontario and Quebec are high and prices are likely to remain about the same.

Supplies of onions are heavy in Ontario and Quebec with prices likely to remain at existing levels.

Carrot supplies are adequate across the country with prices to remain the same.

Hothouse cucumbers are light to adequate in supply in most producing areas, while prices will tend to increase for hot-house tomatoes.

Evening Service For Mr. Weisbeck

Funeral services will be held 7 p.m. today in St. Theresa's Roman Catholic Church for Manuel Weisbeck, 62, of Rutland, who died Tuesday.

Concluding services and interment will be held 2 p.m. Thursday at Kelowna Cemetery.

TEEN BILLETS AT A PREMIUM

The South Okanagan Teens Associated is looking for billets to accommodate some 230 delegates to the 26th annual British Columbia Teens Associated convention, planned for the city April 14 to 17. Aged from 14 to 18 years, teen representatives from all parts of the province attending the conference must be assured of accommodations during their four-day stay here, and residents are urged to call 762-7524 after 5 p.m., or 763-3309 all day or evening to arrange for "desperately needed" billets.

"It does not matter if delegates have to sleep on the floor in a sleeping bag," says the local committee, adding "they won't have sleeping bags with them, but if you do, give us a call."

The committee adds local hosts will only have to supply delegates with supper on April 14 and breakfast on April 16. Delegates travelling home April 17 however, may appreciate a "bite" before they embark on the journey home.

They named their tune Kelowna Kat.

The winning tune, says School District 23 (Kelowna) music supervisor, J. G. McKinley, is a "catchy, marching" song which will be sent to all schools as well as various communications media for promotion.

He added one of the oldest competitors in the contest was 87-year-old George Richard Shemilt, a resident of Still Waters Private Hospital.

All entries were judged by musical directors of School District 23 (Kelowna) and had to be submitted in writing in transcript, guitar chords and lyrics.

Charges of "empire building" levelled against him by a Penitence doctor were denied today by the director of the Okanagan Mental Health Centre in Kelowna.

Dr. Myes Plecash, a member of the Penitence school board, made the charge against Dr. F. E. McNair earlier this week.

The provincial government has offered to place a psychiatric team in Penitence working under the mental health centre, but the Penitence Community Board of Mental Health wants a locally controlled service.

Dr. Plecash said, "Dr. McNair is building an empire. He is burning because a service was established in Vernon without his assistance, and now he is afraid of losing Penitence."

Mrs. Roy Holson, secretary of the mental health board, said that, after two years of trying, that group persuaded two psychiatrists to practice in Penitence.

"We feel that we have the resources and are mature enough to assess our own needs and develop our own program."

Dr. McNair said the centre encourages cities to have their own mental health services. He said that, when the centre was opened in 1962, it served Kelowna, Penitence, Vernon and Kamloops. The latter two have their own services and, when Penitence goes "on its own," the centre will only be responsible for Kelowna.

Dr. McNair said he met with Penitence people this week to discuss the program, and they are quite happy with it.

In Court Today

A Kelowna youth who pleaded guilty to eight counts of breaking and entering and theft was sentenced today to 12 months definite and 12 months indefinite by provincial court Judge D. M. White.

John Mervin Pivniuk admitted five incidents previously. This morning he also pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Bridge Service Station, Porco's Poolroom and the Clubhouse Cafe on Feb. 21, and stealing goods from each.

The judge said he would recommend the youth be sent to the Haney correctional institution.

Later, another Kelowna youth up for sentencing on a charge of possessing MDA, a restricted drug, said his drug habit was encouraged while he was in the Haney institution.

Douglas Edward Howell told the court that, when he was in Haney in 1969, drugs were readily available. He said he wants to learn to repair automobile bodies, and can be reinstated in the course he was taking at vocational school when arrested, or take a job.

His lawyer said the youth has spent about 50 days in the police lockup here.

However, the judge said that, since the youth committed this offence while on bail for another matter, he should be incarcerated again. He was sentenced to four months definite and 12 months indefinite, with the recommendation he go to the Boulder Bay correctional institution.

May 5 was set for trial of William Albert Warren of Kelowna on a fraud charge.

Two other youths, Allan Munroe of Westbank and Donald Bradley Russell Cretin of Kelowna, reserved plea until April 15 on theft charges.

Experiment Planned To Study Nutrients

A $230,000 experiment to control nutrient discharges was approved recently by the consultative board and study committee of the Canada-British Columbia Okanagan Basin Agreement, reports study director A. Murray Thompson.

Nutrients are chemical elements which promote growth of plants in water. Studies will be done under direction of the B.C. pollution control branch.

Last year, Mr. Thompson said, Kelowna, Vernon and Penitence contributed some 60 tons of phosphate to the Okanagan Lake system. Phosphorus is considered the key nutrient in lakes here for algae growth.

Penitence has added a unit to their sewer treatment plant which removes phosphates at the end of the treatment process.

Pilot programs financed by the federal and provincial government will be started at the three main centres.

The NDP Leadership Race

(Our Man In Ottawa, Farmer Tis-sington, has prepared a series based on those men seeking the leadership of the New Democratic party later this month. This is the first of the series. Other articles will follow.)

John Edward Broadbent, the 35-year-old member of parliament for the Ontario industrial riding of Oshawa-Whitby, believes he can win the leadership of the New Democratic Party at the April convention.

Mr. Broadbent told the Ottawa bureau of Thomson Newspapers that he believes he is running second at the moment to party deputy leader David Lewis, with James Laxer, the spokesman for the so-called Waffle Group, a close third.

The way Mr. Broadbent sees the convention, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Laxer and himself will be the last three candidates in the race after the others have been eliminated. If Mr. Laxer then drops out, the bulk of his support would switch to Mr. Broadbent, giving him the edge for the first, last and most important time over Mr. Lewis.

The Oshawa MP had the distinction of being the first candidate in the leadership race and he has been running hard for the past nine months. However, he took time out during the summer to write his book "The Liberal Rip-Off" which has almost sold out its initial printing of 3,000 copies.

"I would campaign again the same way if I was doing it over again because I need all the time I can get to become better known across the country," Mr. Broadbent explained. "This is David's greatest advantage, the fact that he is known by sight to most Canadians and to most delegates. I also get criticism that I am too young and too inexperienced in parliamentary affairs. But I answer that last by pointing out that Mr. Trudeau had only been in the Commons for three years before he became prime minister."

Other criticism of Mr. Broadbent is that he has been too academic in his speeches in parliament and that he does not have as forceful debating style as Mr. Lewis.

On this latter point, he feels he has made some great strides in the last few months of the campaign as he has been speaking across the country and has greatly narrowed the oratorical gap that existed between himself and Mr. Lewis.

He expects that about 25 per cent of the delegates will come to the Ottawa convention uncommitted and for that reason feels that the speaking ability of the candidates will be important. But even more important, will be the campaign organization and he hopes to have close to 100 supporters circulating among the delegates urging them to support Mr. Broadbent.

Policy will not take a back seat to the leadership contest and Mr. Broadbent and his chief workers plan to be active in the policy discussions to make it plain where he stands on many of the fundamental issues before the convention.

Mr. Broadbent is concerned that his campaigning has reduced the amount of time he has been able to spend on his own constituency work as he puts a high degree of importance and priority on this. To offset this, he has hired an assistant, at his own expense, in his Ottawa office to work on problems of his constituents.

If Mr. Broadbent's hopes pan out, he expects to pick up about 80 per cent of the Waffle group vote if Mr. Laxer is eliminated before he is and this should be enough to make him a winner. He thinks he has a good chance of getting at least half of the support for John Harney and Frank Howard if they were eliminated earlier and he recalls that Mr. Howard had promised to support him prior to the time the B.C. member of parliament entered the race himself.

Mr. Broadbent feels he has a closer rapport with the philosophy of the Waffle group than any of the other candidates and points out that he was one of the participants who helped to write the original Waffle statement of principle. But when he could not get certain changes made in the final draft, he did not sign his name to it.

Close observers of the NDP agree that Mr. Broadbent will command strong Waffle support as he has the knack of being able to tell them why he is opposed to certain policies without being at all abusive or abrasive. Mr. Lewis, on the other hand, has spent a great deal of time attacking the group in strong language and is regarded by them as the representative of the old line NDP establishment. On a number of issues, such as his espousal of what he calls "industrial democracy," Mr. Broadbent has taken the initiative in trying to move the party more to the relevant left position.

One handicap he faces is the fact that the bulk of organized labor union support is likely to be behind Mr. Lewis although in Ontario, Mr. Broadbent believes he has much the same union support as was enjoyed in the successful campaign by Stephen Lewis to win the Ontario party leadership. He does not see any sign that Stephen Lewis is playing an active role on behalf of his father, although the other son, Michael, is involved in the campaign.

Mr. Broadbent believes strongly in using political power on behalf of the average and lower income Canadians and he does not believe the party should attempt, as it has in the past, to try to convince people that this can be done without adversely affecting the economic position of the higher income groups.

He is also strongly in favor of speaking out clearly and frankly and talking tough and believes his party has been guilty too frequently of telling the Canadian people they could have the best of both worlds.

"We should make it clear that when we say the government's anti-inflationary policies were bad and that our policy calls for full employment, we should frankly admit that full employment will entail some degree of inflation. Tough decisions have to be made in many policy fields," Mr. Broadbent says. "The prime minister is blunt and has gained a certain amount of grudging admiration for his frankness. But he's a frank conservative and the only way to deal with him is to present an equally frank progressive attitude."

The same sort of frankness must operate in the matter of the foreign ownership question and Mr. Broadbent says that people should be told that Canada can't achieve early economic independence without experiencing a slower rate of growth as foreign equity capital is reduced or eliminated.

With Canadians tending to move more and more into the cities, an urban policy is most important, Mr. Broadbent believes. Cities should have the right to levy their own income tax points to permit this. The provinces must take over all education and welfare costs and municipal governments must be allowed to broaden their horizons on new policies and programs to make the urban environment livable. For example, he believes free public transportation in cities might be cheaper in the long run than continually building and maintaining roads to accommodate a growing number of autos.

And municipalities should not have to compete with one another in trying to attract new industries in order to broaden their municipal tax base.

But it is in the field of industrial relations that Mr. Broadbent believes his policies differ the most from other leadership candidates. He regards it as archaic to maintain the undemocratic power of corporate business directors in this day and age. Methods must be found so that the workers have more direct control over what happens in their offices and factories. Industry must no longer be allowed to operate at will to create mass layoffs, the close down of businesses and technological changes that affect the employees.

And finally, he wants to see the party abandon its role as a gad-fly, pushing old line governments into greater social measures. A change to younger leadership, frank talk to the people and making it clear that the NDP does represent the average Canadian, could result in the party coming to power federally. He believes that the Conservatives are at the weakest period in their history and with great unrest about the Liberal government, the New Democrats could move into the position of the official opposition, even if a fast election was called this fall.

Both Ottawa And Victoria Don't Want Talks To Fail

OTTAWA (CP) — About the last thing the federal and provincial governments want is collapse of the constitutional conference in Victoria in June.

Especially with British Columbia celebrating its provincial centennial.

Thus, preparations are careful for the June 14-16 conference to ensure, as far as possible, that the federal and provincial first ministers will merely have to go through the motions of reaching agreement already arrived at by private negotiation in advance.

There will be a big Canadian unity splash in Victoria if there is formal agreement on patriation of the Canadian constitution—the 1867 British North America Act—and on a method of amending it.

But the agreement and the consequent celebration depend mostly on discussions among the 11 governments now being conducted in strict confidence, officials said Monday.

AGREED ON APPROACH

At their conference here in February, the heads of government agreed on a feasible approach for agreement on an amending formula.

Now comes the tough part: Translating this feasible approach into a document on which the federal authority and all the provinces can formally agree.

One official in close touch with the situation said Monday that the mood is as optimistic as it was in February.

The winter conference moved toward agreement on patriation of the constitution and on an amending formula. The movement was still in that direction.

There have been discussions between Ottawa and the provinces on the subject since February and these will continue until the June meeting.

It is hoped that all or most of the points of detail in a text on an amending formula can be straightened out before the Victoria conference.

RESERVE POSITIONS

However, the governments have reserved their final positions until Victoria. There will be no meeting of first ministers before Victoria so some points may be unresolved until then.

There are dire predictions from some sources that Quebec will never accept the feasible approach amending formula because it would be too easy for other provinces to veto Quebec requests for constitutional changes.

This approach was that agreement by seven of the 11 governments would be required for constitutional amendment. But two of the consenting provinces would have to be Ontario and Quebec. Two would have to be from the west and two from the east.

Mr. Trudeau has argued that the proposed formula is rigid enough to give Quebec a veto on any constitutional amendment it does not want but flexible enough to allow Quebec to make amendments with the agreement of five other provinces and Ottawa.

ONTARIO POWERFUL

The other side of the coin is that Ontario by itself could veto any Quebec-sought amendment. Besides the difficulties with the amending formula, there is a problem concerning definition of language rights in a revised constitution.

At present, the use of English in Quebec courts is a guaranteed constitutional right. But this right would not be in a new constitution as set out by the February conference.

Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec has said that English-language rights will be maintained in Quebec but that there was no reason to spell this out constitutionally when such minority-language rights were not constitutionally provided in the other provinces.

Mr. Bourassa has not yet taken a public position on the amending formula.

CALLEY TRIAL

Sir: These times we are seeing the naked soldier.

Leonard R. Saunders who was in the Second World War (letters, April 2) discloses both sides in that war committed atrocities. He implies such things are legitimate in war. Therefore Lt. Calley should go free.

What Mr. Saunders is bringing forward to challenge the armchair critics of the massacre at My Lai by the Americans, is that war is to win. The consideration is to win. You do not take prisoners, for instance, if it is a handicap to do so.

One can accept that this is war, that its guideline is whatever is necessary to win. (A chaplain's purpose, therefore, would be background for this attitude.) Lies, any deceit or treachery to your side or the other, anything under the sun is the "weapon," if it is judged expedient for the conduct of the war—to winning.

So, the logical deduction from Mr. Saunders' letter is rather clear, that supporting the U.S. presence in Vietnam makes one part and parcel with the atrocities.

Would you lie a little to stop a Communist, to save American lives? And lie bigger? Would you kill, or give the nod to your agent (the young soldier) to do so? Or do "anything" to stop the Communist from coming to—Kelowna? A "no" answer to all leaves you a safe and sound citizen.

Yours sincerely,
ALEX C. BEASLEY

PEOPLE MOVE

Sir: In the past few decades our population has moved from the farm to the city, from the city to the suburbs and the result has been a sprawling network of metropolitan areas. It is estimated that by the year 1980 approximately 35,000 persons will be living within the city limits of Kelowna with an ever greater number living in the suburbs surrounding the city. We must have green areas where the eye can obtain relief from the canyons of the city. To get an idea of what the trend in building in Kelowna has been recently, walk up Pandosy Street from Harvey to Park Avenue. The trend has been to build three to four storey buildings with almost no space in front or between them. More of these buildings are going up every day. Large mature trees and spacious green areas around single family homes are being replaced with apartments and asphalt. The only open space of any size left to us is City Park.

People need open space. We need to hold onto room to stretch not only our arms and legs, but our minds and hearts. Because open space is used in a less structured manner than the remainder of the city, it offers a release from the intense stimulus of the rest of the city. It helps us to better understand ourselves and our environment. It allows man a chance to play, with a freedom impossible to obtain in man-made structures. As uncommodated city land, it gives a man a choice and allows him to do what he feels like doing with a minimum of restraint and without elaborate planning or intervention from the community. The individual is in control, a welcome contrast from the rest of the activities taking place in the community.

When a building is introduced into this open space, not only is the actual land on which the building sits changed, but a large area of land surrounding the building is changed. The open space is no longer an unstructured sanctuary, but is now used for the comings and goings of people bent on organized, structured community affairs. The persons seeking a place to get away from the city and its social and economic restraints are left with no place to go. It would not matter where in City Park the building was situated, the effect would be the same.

Go to City Park, lie on the grass, look at the lake, listen to the wind in the trees, watch the gulls circling overhead, the children playing on the swings, throw a frisbee with a friend. Run, if you feel like it, turn some somersaults if the spirit moves you, ride a bike, get up a game of touch football, play some tennis, strike up a casual conversation with someone you meet there, take a stick and write your name in the sand or don't do any of these things, but do what you feel like doing at the moment. After this, see if you honestly feel a building, regardless of what its use might be, would enhance this area.

Yours truly

Barred Cribbs Not Wanted
ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Some 20 of the 1,872 patients at the Orillia Hospital for the Mentally Retarded have cribbs with protective bars, the hospital administrator said today.

"We don't like them, we don't want them and we would like to get rid of them," said Richard Wilson, adding that the children leave the cribbs for meals, play periods and medical treatment. He said the length of time the children spend in the cribbs is governed by availability of staff to develop programs for them and each child's individual need for bed-rest.

He emphasized that the sole purpose of the enclosed cribbs is to protect mobile, active patients who might injure themselves if they had a normal bed.

The barred cribbs were described in the Ontario legislature Monday by Dr. Morton Shulman, a New Democratic member for Toronto High Park and Patrick Lawlor, NDP member for Toronto Lakeshore, who said they visited the hospital Sunday.

They said many of its facilities were antiquated and overcrowded and that one child was tied to a wheelchair.

Calley's Trial Just Had To Be

By PHILIP DEANE
Foreign Affairs Analyst

Lieutenant Calley's conviction for premeditated murder was a milestone for the American conscience. It will be abused as a verdict; it might be overturned; it will be doubted and there will be those who will willfully misunderstand it.

There will be those who will point out that in modern war the difference between a legitimate killing and murder seems to be a question of distance: if you bomb women and children from several miles up, you are not a murderer in the eyes of the law, if you shoot them at a few paces with your tommy-gun, you are a murderer.

Despite the confusion and the doubts, despite the outcry that Calley is a scapegoat, sacrificed to prove that America does not condone war crimes which are daily committed by her soldiers, the trial and its verdict were necessary and difficult things to put through.

One young officer, contravening the uniform code of U.S. military conduct, shot unarmed civilians and ordered his troops to do the same. The shooting was at close enough range to hear, even to smell the people who were being killed. Part of Calley's defence was that he was afraid of these civilians, that he believed women hid hand grenades in their babies' swaddling clothes. According to the U.S. code of conduct in war, this was a chance he had to take.

It was necessary for the U.S. to put on record that its rules of conduct in war do not share the thinking which is now being voiced by those who defend Calley and who say that "he was a young man who was trained to kill and when he did kill, he was condemned, thus sowing doubt in the minds of all such young men who will not be able to obey orders without consulting their lawyers."

This simply is irrelevant and pernicious. The U.S. forces may conveniently overlook at times—as does any military establishment—but do not officially condone the killing of unarmed civilians. No part of Lieutenant Calley's training can be said to have contained instructions to kill unarmed civilians, deliberately, and at close range.

The distinction between killing from a few miles up in a bomber and killing face to face is hypocritical but it exists, nevertheless. There is a slim chance that the civilians will be missed by the bombs. There is no chance that the civilians will be missed by a tommy-gun fired at point blank range. The air force can always say that it is aiming at a cross roads and that, inevitably, the houses on the side of the road get destroyed. This is not always true as an excuse but at least it is an excuse: even a false excuse preserves the feeling that there is some hesitation, some shame about killing unarmed civilians.

Calley did not share that feeling, the witnesses said. The U.S. bravely exposed itself to prolonged worldwide scrutiny during Calley's trial. It had to be done.

Unemployment And Inflation Have Almost Come Full Circle

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's experiences with unemployment and inflation have come around almost full circle in the last 11 years.

Whether or not the circle will be completed in 1971 depends on the trend of unemployment and inflation next summer and winter. At the moment, some economic forecasters in Ottawa hesitate to predict it will.

The goal is to achieve relative price stability and close to full employment. But past experience indicates that these can rarely if ever be achieved simultaneously.

Canada began the 1960s with high unemployment—more than seven per cent of the labour force out of work. But the rate of price increase was small—less than two per cent a year for the first five years of the decade. And unemployment rates were declining.

Then the rate of price increase accelerated, to an inflationary 4.5 per cent in 1969 and more than that in the early part of 1970. Such a rapid rate might have been accompanied by reduced unemployment as industry expanded in anticipation of continuing good profits.

LABOR FORCE GREW

But advances in technology and a rapidly growing labor force as the post-war baby boom matured were the main contributors to growing unemployment concurrently with rising prices.

The government stepped in more than a year ago to arrest the excessive rate of price increase, and succeeded to the extent that prices in 1970 climbed only 3.3 per cent, the smallest amount in five years. By December, the rate was reduced to 1.5 per cent over December, 1959.

At the same time, the government and its agencies—the Economic Council of Canada and the prices and incomes commission—knew that unemployment would climb, probably to more than six per cent of the labor force. It reached 6.9 per cent, in December, 1970, though the government believed it had passed its peak in seasonally-adjusted terms, as stated to eliminate seasonal peaks and dips.

The long-term goals enunciated by the Economic Council of Canada are annual price rises of not more than two per cent, and not more than three per cent unemployed. Lately, some leading finance department authorities think four-per-cent average annual rates of unemployment might be tolerable.

The council now says Canada needs to achieve a real growth rate of five per cent a year—apart from any increase in prices—to absorb excessive unemployment and bring the country up to its productive potential.

This is a long-range objective for the next few years, and appears unlikely to be attained in 1971. Finance Minister Edgar Benson has predicted a growth rate of 8.5 per cent, including a price increase factor, by the second half of the year.

To the extent that the price climb is more than 3.5 per cent by the second half of the year, the country may fail to achieve the five-per-cent real growth rate. And the growth rate will, it now seems certain, be less than that for the first half of the year.

Unemployment next winter now looms as a problem, with continuing rapid growth in the labor force. But the government is confident that economic incentives introduced last fall and this winter will have their main effect later in 1971.

THE FIVE DAUGHTERS

Kelowna Theatre Players should be well qualified in the art of wedding planning. This is the second year they will be holding an on-stage wedding ceremony. Last year in The Sound of Music, Maria wed Captain Von Trapp and this year in Fiddler On The Roof, Tzeitel, the eldest daughter of Teyve, the dairyman will marry Motel, the tailor. Last year it was a Catholic wedding ceremony surrounded by nuns and postulants. This time it will be under the traditional Jewish ceremony surrounded by the villagers of Anatevka. The five daughters in the musical are seen, left to right, Marjorie Flett as Golde; Lorraine Crosby as Tzeitel; Ingrid Huber as Hodel; Rosemarie Mueller as Chava; Sylvia Slater as Sprintze and Pam Marshall as Bielke. (Courier Photo)

Kelowna RNs Name Delegates Also Hear Educational Reports

The Kelowna Chapter of the Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia held its dinner meeting at the Royal Anne recently. The members present enjoyed a social hour while savoring a roast beef dinner.

With the partaking of their dessert the nurses were introduced to the candidates for the position of president and honorary secretary in the RNABC to be chosen at the annual meeting in Vancouver on May 26-28. This introduction was presented by means of a filmstrip—an innovation to personalize the voting process.

The chapter's eight voting delegates to the annual meeting in Vancouver this May include: the chapter president, Arnette Stark, Mrs. Elise Clark, Mrs. Joan Geen, Mrs. Delcie Hill, Mrs. Dianne Leonard, Mrs. Hanne White, Mrs. Margo Patrick and Mrs. Judy Robertson. The alternatives in order of precedence include, Mrs. Idell Watkin, Alice Chenard and Eleanor Craig.

DISTRICT MEET

The chairman of the committee for the Okanagan-Similkameen district meeting, Mrs. Anne Mackenzie reported this meeting will be held on April 24 in the Chandelier room at the Capri hotel.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Following the business meeting and lunch the guest speaker, Dr. M. Cherkupalle will address the nurses. Anyone interested in helping with arrangements is asked to contact Mrs. Mackenzie soon, as time is running short.

Representation will also be sent to the Vancouver district meeting in the fall with the purpose of promoting goodwill, establishing a 'one-to-one' communication, exchanging information between chapters and demonstrating the Kelowna Chapter's active interest in nursing activities in the province. Persons interested in attending are asked to contact the secretary, Mrs. Judy Robertson before June and the voting on these delegates will be held at the Chapter's September meeting.

PROJECTS

A committee will be formed to look into plans for future projects including a dance, a fashion show and the nurse-teacher football game.

With the completion of the business portion of the meeting the program chairman, Mrs. Dianne Leonard presented speakers from recent 'learnings'.

EDUCATION

On March 10-12 Margaret Wootton, Mrs. Sheri Wood and Mrs. Delcie Hill attended an educational session called Diagnosis and Management of Problems—An Interprofessional Approach, in Vancouver. The guest teacher was the well-known social worker, Virginia

Satir. Rather than lecturing, she had the audience of some 200 people experience situations with her.

Her main message was that individuals should always be seen in the light of their families. During the three days of the conference the following problems were looked at: 1. changing sexual attitudes, 2. learning difficulties in children, 3. contraception, sterilization and abortion, 4. impact of an unwanted pregnancy, 5. aging, 6. terminal illness, 7. the difficulties of adolescents.

Sculpturing was one of the main techniques used to define these problems in the context of the family surrounding the individuals with these difficulties. Mrs. Delcie Hill proceeded to share one example of sculpturing with the meeting, using nurses present as members of the families.

Lois Berry attended an extended-care course on Death and Dying in March, given by Dr. E. K. Ross a noted female psychiatrist. Dr. Ross proposed we live in a death denying society. The examples she gave to substantiate this are: Giving get-well cards to patients with a terminal disease; having the funeral homes where one could view the deceased sitting in a window and sign a guest book while driving by or stopping to have coffee at the funeral home with the deceased sitting present.

Dr. Ross went on to say fear of death is a destructive catastrophic experience. 'We still believe death cannot happen to us.' She suggested that a patient be told when they have a terminal disease and encourage them to talk about it. The steps included in death and dying are: denial, anger and rage, bargaining, depression and acceptance.

SEMINAR

Finally Mrs. Margo Patrick and Mrs. Dianne Mitchell gave a brief outline of the highlights of a three-day seminar which they attended in Vancouver on Maternal Health Nursing—the concept of loss.

Mrs. Margo Patrick presented a few of the concepts which Dr. Sydney Segal, professor at the Vancouver General Hospital, gave on the topic, The Physiological Problems of the Fetus and Newborn Infant.

Of particular note was the idea that the doctor and nurse should work more as a team in working to eliminate these problems.

Mrs. Patrick also spoke on the topic, The Concept of Loss—Grief, Grieving and the Self Image, as presented by Margaret Jensen, assistant professor, department of nursing of the San Jose State College in California.

Mrs. Mitchell shared with the members her report on the topic, Genetics and Genetic Counseling, as presented by Dr. James Miller, professor and head of the division of medical genetics at the University of British Columbia.

GENETICS

A most interesting and meaningful part of this seminar was the chance of the participants to interview mothers of deformed children, to understand fully the stress a family undergoes, thus being better able to give support to such a family. Also of note was the genetic counseling done at UBC to detect the possibility of having children born with genetic defects. This detection can be made as easily as having a blood sample taken and sent to the University of British Columbia.

With this, ended a very interesting and informative meeting.

SWEET ADELINES

New Singing Group Organizing Need Members And Director

Song birds returning to the Valley will not be the only choristers to be heard in these parts. Melodious notes of sweet harmony will soon be enjoyed by both participants and listeners when the Sweet Adelines of Kelowna get into regular sessions of singing.

An organizational meeting on Sunday attended by 10 women, named Mrs. Murray Stewart as president, with Linda Laycock as secretary-treasurer. Before the group can be officially chartered as a Sweet Adeline Chapter they need more members. They are also seeking a director for their vocal endeavors. They meet tonight at the home of Mrs. John Dyck, Long Street, at 7:30 p.m.

At a preliminary meeting earlier in the week, enthusiasm and encouragement was generated by four members of the expanding Penticton Chapter. An invitation was extended to visit the Penticton chorus.

Highlight of the Sweet Adeline year will take place in Vancouver on April 16 and 17 at their annual convention to be held in the Hotel Vancouver during which a competition will take place in the Queen Elizabeth theatre.

Twelve hundred Sweet Adelines from as far afield as Alaska and Saskatchewan and the north-western States will compete with their choruses and quartets.

Although the purpose of the competition is to establish a regional champion chorus and quartet 'it is a wonderful experience for each Sweet Adeline to compete against perfection,' said a spokesman. Penticton Chapter has been working hard towards this goal.

WRONG WAY

LONDON (CP)—Actress All McGraw was furious with her New York dressmaker because a low-backed evening dress she wanted to wear at the Royal Film Performance here had been so badly made that she could not get it on. It turned out that All had made a boob—she tried to wear the dress back to front.

Out-of-town guests were Walter Porter and Ada Green from Vernon; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hall for Kaleden and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Orsi of Westbank.

Organizing this happy event were Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Turton, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Turton and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Turton all of South Kelowna.

ANN LANDERS

There's A Few Onions Among The Orchids

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 20-year-old bride, married only three months and my problem is one I can't bring myself to discuss with anyone. I'm an old-fashioned girl who saved herself for marriage. I looked forward to my wedding night for years, fantasizing by the hour about how glorious it would be. Well, Ann, it was a huge disappointment, and it hasn't gotten any better. I'm beginning to think maybe we are doing something wrong. There must be more to it than this.

I've mentioned my feelings to my husband and he says I should grow up. According to him I've read too many novels and seen too many movies. He claims married sex isn't all that great and anyone who says it is either lying or bragging. He also let me know I expect too much from a guy who has to get up in the morning and go to work.

Right now I'm so confused I don't know what to think. Is he right, Ann? I'm depending on you to tell me the truth.—Disenchanted in Chapel

Dear Dis.: Well, dearie — the truth is somewhere in between. Married love isn't all orchids—but neither is it ragweed. It can be, on occasion, either—or both. My advice is to tailor your fantasies so that they line up more closely with what you have. Your lovemaking is falling between the chairs of a dream man and the guy you married.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a widow who complained because her friends had suddenly disappeared and she is alone. When her husband was alive, she said, they led a very active social life, but now that she can no longer entertain, "no-body wants a fifth wheel." I'm a widow in my mid-60s and many of my friends have lost their mates. I've observed the happy widows and the lonely ones, and I know why the lonely ones are considered social liabilities. They are depressing to be around because they feed on self-pity and want their friends to commiserate with them.

One woman in particular used to complain incessantly about her husband when he was alive. He was a terrible stick-in-the-mud—"never wanted to go any place, tight with money, hard to get along with." Now that he is gone, suddenly he was a dreamboat. They had the most wonderful marriage in the world. Never a cross word. (She forgot about the time she threw a bowl of potato salad at him at a DAR picnic and he got mad and drove off without her and she had to hitch a ride home.)

The women who had the best marriages adjust very well to widowhood. They can make little jokes about the oddities of their dear departed mates. They do so easily, with no self-consciousness and no feeling of disrespect because they know they had a good marriage, and their friends know it, too. Print this Ann. Everyone who is honest will admit that he sees himself in your column at some time or another. I wonder how many women will see themselves in your column today.—Alone But Not Lonely

Dear Alone: Interesting how death improves people, isn't it? I'm printing your letter but I can promise you that few women who see themselves today will admit it. Thanks for writing.

Mrs. Alice Runnalls Heads Local BPWC Executive

Mrs. Alice Runnalls was elected president of the Kelowna Business and Professional Women's Club at the annual meeting Monday night, which followed the regular monthly dinner meeting at Capri.

Other officers elected, who will also be installed at the May meeting at the home of Mrs. Runnalls, include: 1st vice-president, Mrs. Alex Fry; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Lotta Esser; recording secretary, Frances Stratton; treasurer, Mrs. Angelo Rossi; corresponding secretary, Mollie Kelly.

Retiring president, Mrs. Rhylis Trenwith, presented her annual report, in which she mentioned the problems faced in reorganizing a club that had been dormant for several years. The increase in membership the past six months, she said, was encouraging and she expressed appreciation to her executive.

Highlights mentioned by Mrs. Trenwith in her annual report were the meeting with Alan Moss, city alderman as guest speaker, on civic and region affairs; International night with Norah Farina, former resident of Nigeria and the British Isles as speaker; the panel on the Royal Commission's report on the Status of Women at the Kelowna Secondary School.

honal copies were ordered as a community service. They may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Trenwith.

STATUS REPORT

Mrs. Trenwith also noted that 20 copies of the condensed 'Status' report, What's In It? were available to other women in the community who are interested in this informative booklet.

When the club ordered copies for the BPWC members, addi-

Guests welcomed to the regular meeting were Mrs. Nina Green and Norah Farina, who indicated an interest in joining. The meeting got off on a gay note, with members wearing home-made creations of Easter bonnets.

Mrs. Gladys Herbert, charter president of the club, who has rejoined recently, consented to serve as delegate to the International Congress of BPWC in Edmonton in July. The 12th congress, second to be held in Canada, will be attended by nearly 2,000 members from all parts of the world.

In addition several other members of the Kelowna branch have tentative plans to attend parts of the session.

PENTITION MEETING

Mrs. W. L. Hamilton was named as a delegate to the provincial convention which will be held in Penticton on May 22 to 24. Mrs. Runnalls will attend as an observer and Mrs. Trenwith will attend the board meeting. A number of other members have indicated they will be attending the Saturday sessions. Resolutions which will be brought up at this convention, will be discussed at the May meeting of the Kelowna club.

Mrs. Alex Fry reported on the hospitality weekend hosted by the club during the mid-term break for four students from the International House of the University of British Columbia.

The piano presented to the city of Kelowna some years ago, was discussed. Newer members learned that this was the 'grand' piano presently in the Kelowna Community Theatre. A motion to purchase a plaque was approved.

300 Attend Craft Display

Spring is late in Kelowna but it was not so at St. Paul's United Church hall during the weekend.

The chenille flower arrangements by Mrs. Shaw Thomson and her pupils were a delight to behold.

Approximately 300 citizens of Kelowna and district turned out during the two days to view the beautiful oil paintings, pastels, pen and pencil sketches, petit-point pictures, bead work and other handicrafts done by the classes at the St. Paul's Time Out program.

Excepting gold, copper was known to man earlier than any other metal and the fine array of pictures created from this metal added greatly to the display of work.

The large assortment of fine linens and cottons beautified with liquid embroidery showed what can be done by anyone interested in this hobby.

Particularly eye-catching was the demonstration of liquid embroidery on black velvet by Mrs. Dorothy Timms.

Arts and crafts classes resume again early in September.

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Bazaar For Pine Grove Residence Proves A Successful Venture

The Parents' Association for Pine Grove residence was delighted with the overwhelming success realized financially from the bazaar held at St. David's Presbyterian Church hall on Saturday, thus making it one step closer to obtaining their residence for the retarded and handicapped.

The Easter theme was used throughout, complete with Easter bunnies and brightly colored eggs. Lovely floral arrangements of spring flowers artistically arranged by Bill Jennings, added to the attractiveness of the tea tables, where approximately 300 citizens enjoyed a lovely lunch. Convenor of the tea tables, Mrs. Gordon Oliver, was assisted by several young girls who volunteered their help and looked lovely in their gay daffodil aprons.

The stalls, laden with sewing, knitting and fancy work of every description proved quite popular with all ages and the bakers groaned under heavy loads of goodies, which were snapped up quickly by the folks interested in home baking.

A popular corner for the small fry was an added feature this year in the form of a fish pond, cool-aid stand and free bags of marbles for each child.

Mrs. Elphege Bedard and Mrs. Ben Schneider, the hard working bazaar convenors, summed it all up as one of the most financially successful bazaars yet.

Kelowna Fans Follow Trend

By LORNE WHITE

Kelowna hockey fans seem to be following the trend across the country in their predictions for the best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-finals which begin tonight.

A small poll taken Tuesday, indicates that Boston Bruins, New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks and St. Louis Blues, all betting favorites, will advance to the semi-finals.

The poll, consisting of 15 hockey "experts", put the Black Hawks first place finishers in the West division of the National Hockey League, with 107 points, as the only unanimous choice to take their quarter-final series, against the third place Philadelphia Flyers.

Although the Hawks will have to rely on one goaltender, Tony Zeno, most predictors feel that with young and tough Keith Magnuson anchoring an experienced defence in front of his goaltender and behind Bobby and Dennis Hull, along with Pit Martin, the Hawks will dispose of the Flyers in easy fashion.

EIGHT OF THOSE taking part in the poll predicted the series will last but four games, six said the Hawks would win it in five, while one gave the Blues the series in six games.

Boston Bruins, East division champions, with more victories than any team in history, and with six of the top 10 scorers in the NHL, were picked to defeat the Montreal Canadiens by 14 of the 15 voters, with two selectors giving them the series in four games. The remaining 12 men said the series would go five or six games, with none allowing it to go the full seven.

Emile Francis, coach and general manager, said this week that anyone who calls the New York Rangers to choke is an idiot. Kelowna has at least five who are taking a gamble in being classified in Francis' category.

Hungry after 30 years without winning a Stanley Cup, an increasingly offensive-minded New York squad, second place finishers behind Boston in the East, will meet the Toronto Maple Leafs, who will be depending on their strength down the middle and in goal.

NONE OF THE 15 VOTERS predicted the series to be determined in less than six games, with three giving the Leafs the edge in seven games, and three having the fourth place Toronto squad take the series in six.

Most voters are staying with the St. Louis Blues to advance to the semi-finals, after disposing of the Minnesota North Stars.

The Blues, the Stanley Cup finalists for the past three years, will again have the accent on defence, but a mid-season trade which added Garry Unger helped the offensive attack. But the Blues will sink or swim with the defence and goalies Glenn Hall and Ernie Wakely.

With Bill Goldsworthy, Danny Grant, and rookie Jude Drouin, the Stars have an impressive attack, which led five voters to pick them to upset the Blues in six or seven games.

If things run according to the 15 Kelowna forecasts, it looks as though Chicago and Boston will be rested up by the time the semi-final series come around, while the other two quarter-final winners will be clamouring for strength.

Under the new semi-final format, Boston who were predicted to take Montreal, will meet St. Louis, while New York will take on Chicago—Chicago and Boston in the Stanley Cup finals?

No predictions this year, you did it for me!

BURGLAR KEPT IT IN FAMILY

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Richard Bacon returned home, found it ransacked and spotted a man fleeing through a neighbor's yard.

Bacon called police, and he and officers fired more than a half-dozen shots before the fleeing man surrendered unharmed. Bacon then learned the man was his brother, Tommy Leroy Bacon, 25.

Police said Richard Bacon, 29, told them he had seen his brother only once in the last six years and thought he was attending college in California.

Tommy Bacon was charged Monday with second-degree burglary.

School Display Hot And Cold

While about 600 School District 23 (Kelowna) students showed more than 1,000 spectators what they were being taught in physical education classes, Extravaganza '71 organizers found out Tuesday, they had a lot to learn themselves.

The largest physical education display ever attempted got under way at the Kelowna and District Memorial Arena Tuesday, taking about three hours to complete the first of two performances, with some fast-paced action, and some extremely dull moments.

With 14 schools taking part in the first dry run, the show ran about 20 minutes behind schedule, which was to be expected, but of the large crowd which witnessed the Olympic-type procession at the beginning of the show, few stayed to watch the entire display.

The large arena area posed problems for some performers, and took something away from their activities, while smooth-running gymnastic displays and team games highlighted the evening's entertainment.

"We could have cut a few displays short," said chairman of the Extravaganza Larry Johnson of Kelowna Secondary School, "and possibly have made better use of the expensive floor space, but although the show may have dragged at times, the purpose of the display was reached."

About 25 different activities taught in the school district classes were shown to parents and spectators by students in primary school through to the secondary level.

Following the impressive procession of athletes, Martin, Gordon and Graham elementary schools got things underway with primary dancing, small apparatus display and rhythmic exercises.

Matheson and Bankhead Elementary Schools followed with soccer, field hockey and tumbling performances, while Central Elementary went through gymnastic, dance and Canada fitness routines.

A tumbling display by Dorotea Walker Elementary School was next, while Rutland, Wood Lake and Central elementary students were involved in volleyball games at the same time.

Secondary students took over after intermission, with George Elliot students from Winfield going through several ballroom dancing steps. George Pringle Secondary School boys' volleyball team took on George Elliot while two Dr. Knox Secondary girls' volleyball teams played against each other.

Kelowna's newest junior secondary school, KLO, had several square dancing numbers, followed by Dr. Knox' windup involving a back street carnival, Tinkling Tarantella and Huva Nagalla dances, vaulting and rugby displays.

The Kelowna Secondary School's junior band, conducted by Brian Todd performed for the first half of the show.

Tonight's display will be highlighted by two basketball games between the two elementary school finalists, Rutland and Glenmore and between two of the top senior AA teams, Kelowna and Rutland.

Other schools taking part will be South Kelowna, East Kelowna, Mission Creek, Glenmore, Quigley and Lakeview elementary, with the Rutland school band conducted by Arnold Peters, supplying the music.

Starting time again is 7 p.m.

PROJECT REJECTED
SURREY (CP)—Surrey council has turned down its major centennial project, a new ice rink and senior citizens' centre, after learning the buildings would cost $380,632 — $98,000 more than early estimates.

Applications will be screened by the appropriate sports governing agencies and their recommendations will be sent to the national selection committee," says Dr. Hindmarch.

"The $1 million program of educational grants is part of national health and welfare program to employ or otherwise involve in activities an estimated 2,000 students at a cost of about $3 million this summer."

Co-chairman with Dr. Hindmarch is Pierre Charbonneau, co-ordinator of the Olympic Games, Montreal.

Applicants seeking information should contact their school, sports governing body in British Columbia or the B.C. Sports Federation at 1200 West Broadway (736-9751).

"Student athletes who are not in training or competitive programs during the summer will be involved in various teaching clinics and travelling demonstrations during the summer. They will receive travel and living allowances for this period."

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jean Lachapelle, 33, has been committed for higher court trial on charges resulting from two armed holdups last year. About $70,000 was taken from a Loomis armored car and $40,000 was taken from a branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Educational Grants-In-Aid Available For 60 Students

Educational grants-in-aid of up to $2,000 each in value will be available to more than 60 B.C. athletes.

The financial assistance for student athletes will come from the $1 million grant program announced by national health and welfare minister, John Munro.

"The educational grants are available to student athletes with international and national competitive experience including such events as Canada Games and the Arctic Games," says grants-in-aid co-chairman, Dr. Robert Hindmarch.

"The grants will assist students whose training and competitive schedules do not allow them sufficient employment opportunities in the summer months," says the UBC professor.

"Student athletes who are not in training or competitive programs during the summer will be involved in various teaching clinics and travelling demonstrations during the summer. They will receive travel and living allowances for this period."

A REASON FOR EASTER SEALS

These children have just arrived at one of four Easter Seal Camps. They will enjoy a week or 10 days of camping under the supervision of capable directors, counsellors and volunteers. Your Easter seal dollars provide the camps and the services. Extra dollars are required for camperships. A drive to promote seals, is underway in Kelowna and district. Camps for the handicapped child must be fitted with ramps not stairs, and require many bannisters, together with other special devices to assist the children in meeting daily needs. Camps for the non-handicapped do not have these extras, and are frequently located in terrain which denies access to the handicapped. Easter seal dollars are spent on summer camps for handicapped children, summer camping programs, camp directors, nurses, cooks, counsellors and volunteers. There is never enough money to accommodate all those who wish to come, those who can't afford to help to defray part of the cost; and those who have travel difficulties because they live a long distance away from the nearest camp.

He Drinks Confidently To Re-cycled Sewage

RUTLAND — You have to be a confident man to dip your hands in what seconds before was raw sewage and take a drink.

A. A. Blackford is a man brimming over with confidence. And if he, one of designers of a two-pronged treatment process serving a 100-acre 2,000-plus population subdivision here shows such confidence, some pollution-conscious minds should be set to rest.

The treatment plant facilities, located in the Hollywood Dell area, are owned and operated by the building company Mr. Blackford manages.

The Hollywood Dell development, now about half completed, at a cost of $8 million-plus, was started in 1967. The last 300 of the 800 homes in the area should be built by the end of 1972.

The complex was designed for middle-income families, said Mr. Blackford. Because of this it wanted home purchasers to qualify for Central Mortgage and Housing Association loans. This necessitated, according to CMHA regulations, the construction of sewage facilities.

So the company developed two sewage treatment stations at a cost of over $250,000. One of the treatment stations was expanded from a facility that had handled 7,500 gallons of effluent daily to serve a small 50-lot subdivision, to its present 120,000 gallon a day capacity. The second facility will eventually handle even more sewage than this.

As such the two treatment stations constitute Rutland's most sophisticated sewage treatment facilities. The treatment process involves eight stages. The system operates according to the aro-bic bacteria principle. Essentially it is the same process, although on a smaller scale, that is in effect in most municipal treatment systems.

Mr. Blackford says the system essentially "re-cycles" waste.

"The only contents at the end of the process that might create a pollution threat are phosphates and nitrates," he said. "But a very large percentage of the phosphates are dispersed when treated water passes through the soil. Also, it is the opinion of many that after passing through several miles of soil, the nitrates which ultimately flow into waterways would not create any great pollution threat."

Mr. Blackford said both stations "were designed with maintenance in mind." He said the company employs "dedicated people to maintain standards of quality." As part of this quality standard effort a Vancouver geological consulting firm is now undertaking a thorough test of the effectiveness of the system.

The building company manager said his firm is the only development concern in the country that still maintains a sewage system it built. From a financial standpoint it does so now "at a break-even point," he said.

The taxes for those homeowners connected to the system pay for its upkeep, he said. It cost each taxpayer about $60 a year to support the system. Mr. Blackford said his company has been negotiating with the Central Okanagan Regional District to have the treatment plant facilities turned over to it.

"We think it would be more appropriate if a municipality of some kind maintained the system," he stated.

CANADIAN STARFISH

About 60 species of starfish are found in Canadian waters.

RIDING CLUB MEETS

PEACHLAND (Special) — The Peachland Riding Club held its first work parties of the year on Saturday and Sunday. Although outside clubs arrived to help the group, there was a very disappointing turn-out of local members. Another work party will be held this weekend and all residents of the area are asked to give a few hours to this important project. Members will be there from 8 a.m. both days and the present project is the ring.

PRIZE PIG

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — The winner of the first Miss Zambia beauty contest will receive a cow, $350 and a trophy, contest organizers announced. They said the runner-up will get $175 and a pig.

SHAREHOLDERS TOLD;

NOCA In 'Strong Position'

Henry L. Wiens, general manager of SODICA said in his report to shareholders, at the 45th annual general meeting in Vernon that in 1970 NOCA had again achieved new records of growth in all departments.

NOCA's financial position continues to be strong with total assets reaching new highs, while current liabilities are still below the 1968 level.

NOCA continued the policy of not incurring any unnecessary long-term debts, and the co-op is now in a stronger competitive position than in recent years.

Producer members of the co-operative received a year-end bonus of $50,533, which was up slightly from the 1969 bonus. The co-op continued to hold a high level of class one sales.

The co-operative was able to obtain a total of $215,941 above operating costs and milk board payments to members; however the major portion of these extra earnings was paid to the B.C. milk board in the form of equalization payments.

Mr. Wiens paid tribute to the co-operation of producers, employees, and loyal NOCA customers, who made it possible for the association to maintain the high level of area class one sales and still pay out a bonus at the year-end. These extra earnings were welcomed by dairy farmers, who have their own problems with rising costs.

Sales achievements—due to the growing interest by consumers in improved nutrition and an increase in the variety and types of dairy foods, the Canadian fluid milk products sales have been advancing at a rate greater than the increase in population. In British Columbia, the picture is even better with a good balance being maintained between production and sales.

PRIME FUNCTIONS

Farm department—have fulfilled their prime function of promoting the growth of milk supply to equal sales requirements.

Office procedures in 1970 saw commencement of a change to electronic data processing. During 1971, the shift will continue toward computer-run programs. Recent certification of the office unit in the Teamsters' Union will of course, accelerate changeover. NOCA expects that the union demands for the office workers will force changes otherwise not contemplated.

Atlantic Provinces Urged To Seek U.S. Export Market

HALIFAX (CP).—The Atlantic Development Council has urged the Atlantic provinces to look to the eastern seaboard of the United States as a major market for exports.
In a report released Tuesday, the council said Canadian trade policy must recognize the need for "substantial foreign markets." The council president, Prof. William Smith of Fredericton, said he expected the major market to be the eastern U.S.
The report said employment and investment levels are expected to become a guide for judging development in the Atlantic region in the next decade.
Prof. Smith told a news conference the main emphasis in the report was on the approach to development and "not necessarily" figures. But the report said capital investment of $25,000 million will be required in the 10-year period if Atlantic Canada is to reduce unemployment and improve income standards.
Richard Hatfield was the only Maritime premier to comment on the report. The New Brunswick premier said he agrees that the main objective of regional development should be the reduction and eventual elimination of unemployment.
The council set 1976 as the year when unemployment should reach between five and six per cent of the labor force. It hoped the rate would drop to between four and 4.5 per cent by 1981.
In the 1960s, the unemployment rate ranged from a high of 11.2 per cent in 1961 to a low of 6.4 per cent in 1966.
The report says a "substantial reduction" must be made in the number of persons who leave the area to find jobs. This loss has adversely affected productivity and the size of internal markets.
The report said about 170,000 additional jobs must be created in the region by the end of the decade. The area now employs 638,400.
Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand received the report at a meeting with the ADC Tuesday. The 11 members of the council, an advisory body to the minister, were appointed in November, 1969, and include businessmen, labor leaders and educationists from the region.
Mr. Marchand said the report will have a "profound effect" on Atlantic development policies. His department would take each recommendation and discuss an "action plan." The four Atlantic premiers and the council would be included in discussions.
The department should be ready to make its decisions before the fall session of Parliament. "This is not a report we want to shelve."

Valdez Oil Pipeline To Be Built Claims Top British Official

LONDON (AP).—British Petroleum Co. says it is "quite confident" it will be able to start moving Alaskan oil from its North Slope oil properties in a "reasonable time."
Sir Eric Drake, chairman, said it was hoped that sometime this year the U.S. government would authorize construction of the planned pipeline from the North Slope to the ice-free port of Valdez on Alaska's south coast.
"I believe the Valdez line can be built whilst fully meeting the legitimate anxieties of the conservationists," Sir Eric said Monday.
Asked about the prospects for building the oil pipeline across Canada instead of Alaska, he said he believed a gas line might be built in Canada to carry gas from the North Slope.
Another BP executive estimated at 1.5 million barrels a day the productive capacity of the Prudhoe Bay field on the North Slope. Of this total, he estimated BP and its associated company, Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) account for more than half. Other oil companies, he said, may differ with this estimate.
The planned Valdez pipeline would have an initial capacity of 600,000 barrels a day, but a BP executive said that by increasing the number of pumping stations on the line its capacity could be progressively increased to 1.2 million barrels a day and eventually to 2 million barrels a day.

Maverick British Tory Beats Government On Racial Bill

LONDON (AP).—The Conservative government suffered a technical defeat on its controversial immigration bill in Parliament Thursday at the hands of the maverick Tory MP Enoch Powell.
The bill is designed to limit non-white immigration to Britain from the Commonwealth. Powell opposes it on grounds that the bill does not go far enough.
An amendment by Powell was carried in committee by a vote of 19 to 16 in a defeat for the government stand.
Originally the bill exempted from immigration restrictions those Commonwealth citizens whose grandparents were born in Britain. Liberal MPs charged this amounted to a white settler's charter, because most Commonwealth citizens with British grandparents are white. Non-white immigration to Britain is relatively new. Some non-white immigrants have parents born in Britain, but few have British grandparents.
Powell, however, argued that in future years prospective non-white immigrants could have British grandparents too. His amendment knocked out the grandparents' clause and was supported by those MPs who saw it as a white settlers' charter.
The government defeat on this clause is only technical, however, as it can be re-inserted in later stages of the parliamentary process.

Berkeley Voters Prefer Radicals

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP).—Berkeley voters have placed three self-proclaimed radicals and a moderate on the city council and elected their first black mayor. The new mayor supports the radicals.
The results of Tuesday's election leave moderates and radicals deadlocked 4-4 for control of city government.
A radicals-backed proposal to split Berkeley police into three departments controlled by councils in black, white and student neighborhoods was overwhelmingly rejected.
Edward Kallgren, a white lawyer who described himself as "an independent liberal," was top vote-getter in a field of 53 candidates for four council seats.

Why She's Hearing More About Cancer

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does anyone know why so many women are getting breast cancer and cancer of the uterus? It seems I've been hearing a lot about this lately, and it has me worried. There must be some kind of theory worked up on this.—Mrs. G.M.

Perhaps one reason is that you are of an age at which more of your friends are in the age bracket at which these cancers are more likely to be found. (The same applies to men in their 40s and 50s who become aware of friends and acquaintances having heart attacks.) There's more to the story than that, though. A greater awareness of cancer is growing gradually, diagnosis is more accurate, earlier treatment is possible. Along with this, I think there is more willingness to talk frankly about cancer instead of hiding it or refusing to mention it.

Actually a fact sheet from the American Cancer Society indicates that there has been little change in the death rate from breast cancer in 18 years (1950-52 vs. 1965-67). But there has been a decline of 47 percent for cancer of the uterus in that same interval, the difference being attributed to wider use of the Pap smear which detects cancer of the cervix early before it has invaded other tissues and becomes harder to treat.

Deaths from cancer of the stomach and colon also have decreased markedly, presumably from earlier diagnosis and better treatment methods; lung cancer has increased, attributed to cigarette smoking.

There is reason to suppose that deaths from breast cancer can be reduced if more women will learn the rather simple routine of self-examination of the breasts, and report any lump Opening lead—two of hearts. There is quite a difference between bad luck and bad management.

Consider this deal where West led a heart. Dealer followed low from dummy, winning with the ten, and cashed the A-Q of diamonds. West discarding a low club on the second one.

With only eight high-card tricks, South continued with the king and another diamond as his only real hope of establishing a ninth. West in the meantime had discarded two hearts on the last two diamonds.

Upon winning the diamond, East defended exceptionally well by shifting to the ten of spades. As a result, South had to go down one. He covered the ten with the queen, but West won with the ace, returned a low spade to the king, and then gobbled up two more tricks with the J-7.

Undoubtedly South encountered bad luck on the hand, as well as shrewd defense, but even so, he contributed in large measure to his own downfall.

He should have resisted the temptation to play low from dummy on the opening lead, even though this meant he was rejecting a fourth heart trick that was being handed to him on a silver platter.

His chief concern should have been a 4-1 diamond break, with East having four of them. He should have won the heart lead in dummy and returned a low diamond to the eight, being perfectly willing to lose the trick to West.

With West on lead, there was no chance whatsoever of the defenders' being able to cash four spade tricks in succession. Only East gained the lead was such an outcome possible, and had South protected against this at the start he would have come home with the contract.

Science, Engineering Graduates To Exceed Number Of Jobs Open

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will have many more science and engineering graduates than can be fully used for at least two more years. Beyond that the future is uncertain.

This gloomy outlook for scientists and engineers was set out today in a study by Dr. Frank Kelly, a science adviser to the Science Council of Canada.

His report will be the foundation of a later report to the government recommending action.

Dr. Kelly says that this year alone perhaps half the estimated 14,000 science and engineering graduates will not be used effectively.

In the most highly-trained category, there may be a surplus of 400 PhD holders this year with a further surplus of 500 in 1972.

This unprecedented prospect of an abundant supply of highly-trained manpower has important implications for universities, industry and educational institutions.

Canada now produces proportionately more PhDs than the United States or Britain for an employment system that finds it difficult to use their skills.

But the study says it is doubtful if Canada produces half enough educated people to achieve the national goals proposed to the government by the science council in October, 1968.

Dr. Kelly, a young Australian chemist who came here six years ago, sharply criticizes inadequacies in data to measure supply, demand and the factors affecting them.

He makes it plain that Canada could benefit from Britain's example in setting up an institute of manpower studies supported co-operatively by government, universities, employers' associations and trade unions.

Dr. Kelly peers into the future for effects of this unaccustomed wealth of graduates.

He predicts emphasis on education as training for well-paid professional jobs will decline. Stress will be laid on education for its own sake and for its problem-solving potential. He warns that society is unprepared for this large and sudden transition.

He identifies several important factors in how smoothly the transition is made.

He says employers and educationalists must intensify recent efforts to make each other aware much earlier of job-market trends.

SCREEN IMMIGRANTS
Canada may have to start screening the immigrant professionals who were a substantial source of supply in the years when there were shortages.

In industry, companies may lose out in the flow of new ideas and techniques by restricted hirings and the general educational improvement of industry may be impaired.

New emphasis on enrolment in social sciences among today's undergraduates indicates that the pattern of the physical sciences may be repeated—demands for teachers filled by immigrants with the prospect in five years of an abundance of graduates who look to teaching as their prime field of employment.

Universities already are making it harder for graduates to get into schools to take higher degrees. Provincial governments are boosting fees and reducing scholarships for post-graduate training.

Movement of graduates from province to province will intensify as each region tries to offer more equal opportunity for undergraduate and graduate education at a time when employment opportunities are not keeping pace with growth in education.

Discrimination against women graduates will be reinforced by a plentiful graduate supply, more so in industry than government and university jobs.

Pressure will grow to extend university education to a larger proportion of the college-age population and to age groups.
